

STOLE $30 WHILE PAL SLEPT, COURT DECIDES

Frank Williams Held to District Judge Under Bond of $500; Jameson Ginger Story Falls.

Frank Williams, accused of taking $30 from the pocket of Jerome Stewart, as the latter slept in the El Paso railway station on the night of May 28, was bound over for trial at his preliminary hearing Tuesday before Justice H. J. Gray, and was committed to jail under bond of $500. The court ordered the defendant to turn over to the state the amount of the bond, which the attorney for the defense said he would do.

TO CALL WATER HARD AT WORK

NEW YORK, June 3.—Working behind a close veil of secrecy, the police and federal agents were bending every energy tonight toward the capture of the anarchist or anarchists responsible for the bomb explosion this morning at the home of Judge Charles C. Noble, Jr., of the court of general sessions.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

and let the people decide upon the merits of Starkweather.

W. C. Strode, president of the Lyons club and chairman of the local radio committee presented his petition to the board when asked to speak at the meeting.

He stated that some had raised his pocket of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that there had been no exchange of money.

Williams' story, however, was at no great variance with the testimony of uninterested witnesses called by the state, that the court held his story to be fabrication.

WELCOME STATE WARRIOR'S HOME

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

lived Col. Lewis S. Nordin, commanding whose home is in Chico, introduced Governor Robertson to the members of the delegation.

"I am simply commissioned to come here and say 'howdy' to your Governor," Robertson said. He explained that he also represented the Texas state, Governor Hobby being unable to come. "I know you are going to get home, but you are not half as anxious to get home as we are. Oklahoma is going to see you. You will find a great welcome at home. Great ladies have arisen and great problems are to be solved. We believe you are the men to solve them."

Senator Owen welcomed the men on behalf of the United States senate. "You are our home for the safety of the republic in the future," after Congressmen said.

Congressman Morgan and Congressman Howard in their addresses greeted the men as part of the greatest soldiers that ever put on a uniform and Congressmen Hastings, McClinton, Johnson and Ferrin spoke the same line.

"God bless you every one," said Congressman Tom McKeown. "You whipped the Hun and you can have anything you want. Go down to Texas and Oklahoma and get it."

"Your deeds are beyond compare," said Congressman Jones. "You are back in a country that belongs to you."

"It is particularly fortunate that Oklahoma and Texas are linked together in this way as they were in the 16th and 9th divisions," said Congressman Summers. "In the days you men will see, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas will form the keystone of this country. Go home, fight the civil battles and make it a happy day."

As Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman, organizer of the old Oklahoma national guard, rose to speak he was given an ovation that lasted for five minutes. Choking with emotion, General Hoffman greeted the men as comrades and welcomed them back home.

Tonight the entire party with the exception of Senator Owen, who was called back to Washington, were guests at a dinner given by former Governor and Mrs. Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma.

RENEW FIGHT ON ANARCHISTS

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

home. It was read in full to the senate.

Question Anarchists.

Anarchists and radicals with anarchist tendencies over the country were being questioned today by agents of the department of justice. Even those commonly referred to as "parlor anarchists" were being interrogated, but so far as known none was arrested either in Washington or elsewhere.

Assistant General Burleson said today he had received a number of threatening letters in the mail during the past month and that a large majority of them were written by women with tendencies toward violence.

The head of the dead anarchist was found on the roof of a house more than a block away from the scene of the explosion and was taken down by firemen, who were searching the roof tops for possible evidence.

Representative Mansfield of Texas was passing nearby when the bomb exploded. Flying fragments of the anarchist struck him and dyed deep crimson spots in the light summer suit he was wearing.

SEVERAL HELD ON SUSPCTION

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—Investigation by agents of the department of justice and local police working together has failed to develop a clue to the identity of the perpetrators of the bomb outrages in this city last night when the rectory of a Catholic church and the home of a private citizen were badly damaged. Neither was there advanced any tangible reason why the places were selected for destruction. Several men were arrested on suspicion of being connected with the explosion, but all were released, because nothing could be found to connect them with the crimes.

Most of those working on the case seemed to agree that one gang was responsible for the outrages in Philadelphia and seven other cities, the bomb explosions here last December, and the mailing of incendiary machines in New York in April. It also has been established with a fair degree of certainty, according to the police, that the Philadelphians are the headquarters of the violent radicals of the east, and that their leaders, who blew himself to atoms in front of Attorney General Palmer's home in Washington, was sent from this city.

The police department today issued orders for the arrest of persons naming and issuing notices of a general strike throughout the city. The call is for a "general strike to free all political prisoners" and is the opinion of the police that the authorities are to inaugurate here a strike similar to the one that is sweeping Canada.

NEW YORK POLICE HARD AT WORK

NEW YORK, June 3.—Working behind a close veil of secrecy, the police and federal agents were bending every energy tonight toward the capture of the anarchist or anarchists responsible for the bomb explosion this morning at the home of Judge Charles C. Noble, Jr., of the court of general sessions.

Stewart claimed that he met Williams in the city on the afternoon of the day upon which the alleged theft occurred, and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that there had been no exchange of money.

Williams' story, however,

was at no great variance with the testimony of uninterested witnesses called by the state, that the court held his story to be fabrication.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams' arrest.

Williams denied the story, claiming that he and his two friends had visited several places about the city that night and that the pair were in the El Paso waiting station from shortly after sunset on the night of May 28 until about midnight when Stewart told him that some had rained his pockets of all his money. He called the police and caused Williams